- Departmental Report Of The Assamese Department

An overview of the academic, vocational and cultural dimensions of the Assamese department of Cinnamara College from its inception to the present.

According to the western philosopher Pestalozzi - “Education is the natural, progressive and harmonious development of man’s innate powers”.

Cinnamara College is a leading institution of higher learning in South Jorhat .The College was established on 1st June 1991 and was recognized as a degree College by Dibrugarh University in 1997-98. The Assamese MIL and major course (honours) as a subject was introduced in 1997-98 in degree level .Along with imparting education, Assamese department has always tried to give equal importance to art and culture for both teachers and students.

Vision and Mission

- The department is going to give importance in understanding the relevance of translation literature in the vast field of literature as there could be seen a decrease in the discussion of translation literature among us.
- We will undertake various efforts to attract students towards research.
- Motivational programme have been also organized to encourage the students for higher studies and academic writing.
- The department will also try to study tribal language and cultural studies of different other tribes of Assam including an ethnic museum.
- We will also try to study about tribal language through the “Mohan Chandra Mahanta Research Centre Cinnamara College “in the future.
- Our department plans to organize more seminars, Workshop,FDP, etc in coming years.
- Aim for a minor project of analytical study about Dr. Nagen Dutta’s Rasanawalli.
- The department has been thinking about introducing a seat in memory of Hemkanta Bordoloi, one of the distinguished educationists of Southern part of Jorhat district in the department of Assamese.

CELEBRATION DAYS MEMORIES

STRENGTH

- All teachers are very helpful to students. Department always tries to create a friendly environment between teachers and students of the college.
- Teachers are involved in research works, cultural activities and various co-curricular activities of the college.
- Introduction of new add-on course in performing arts.

WEAKNESS

- Limitations in conducting extension programmes.

OPPORTUNITY

- Scope for cultural studies of different other tribes of Assam including an ethnic museum.
- As the subject itself represents the vernacular medium, it is a challenge to prepare the students for competitive exams as well as for interviews which involves English as the medium of instruction.
